

New York Law Journal

Rising Star: Sharonmoyee Goswami

Sharonmoyee Goswami of Cravath, Swaine & Moore.

Practice Profile: Sharonmoyee Goswami is a partner with Cravath, Swaine & Moore. Goswami focuses her practice on intellectual property, antitrust and litigation involving complex scientific issues. She has extensive experience representing companies and individuals in all stages of litigation, from pre-complaint investigation through appeal, and routinely practices before the U.S. Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB).

Leadership, Pro Bono and Civic Work: Goswami is extremely active among numerous bar associations, currently serving as chair of the patent litigation committee of the New York City Bar Association and vice chair of the Federal Circuit Bar Association's PTAB and TTAB committee. She is also a director of the South Asian Bar Association of New York and serves on the diversity committee of the PTAB Bar Association. She has additionally worked on a number of pro bono matters involving issues including asylum, employment discrimination, gun laws and hate crime litigation.

RISING STAR

What advice would you give to young lawyers? I think it is important for young lawyers to take the time to do the extra research on their cases. If you want to stand out, you should always be up on the latest relevant news and legal precedent and should know your client's business backwards and forwards. Being a go-to resource for the client as well as for the partners and senior associates on your team can lead to greater leadership opportunities and stronger working relationships, which will ultimately benefit your career.

Prior Experience: Cravath associate, 2012; 2014-2019; Cravath partner, 2020-present.

Education: J.D., 2012, New York University School of Law

B.S.E., 2009, Princeton University