Scott B. Reents focuses on electronic discovery and the application of artificial intelligence (AI) and other advanced technologies to legal practice.

Mr. Reents represents clients in a variety of litigation matters, regulatory matters and internal investigations. He oversees the Firm's data analytics and e-discovery work and speaks and writes about topics related to digital evidence and AI. Mr. Reents serves on several working groups and commissions focused on the effective use of technology in legal practice and the courts.

Mr. Reents's representative matters include:

- Representation of PG&E in connection with mass tort litigation related to the California wildfires between 2019 and 2021.

- Representation of Robinhood in lawsuits arising out of the temporary placement of certain limits on trading in certain securities in the face of unprecedented market volatility.

- Representation of Light & Wonder (formerly Scientific Games Corporation) in putative class action and individual antitrust litigation concerning automatic card shufflers used in casinos.

- Representation of Costamare Shipping and related entities in connection with litigation filed in California federal court alleging various theories of liability concerning the October 2021 San Pedro Bay pipeline leak off the coast of California.

- Representation of Illumina in antitrust regulatory review and litigation concerning the company's $8 billion acquisition of GRAIL, a healthcare company focused on multi-cancer early detection.

- Representation of Qualcomm in several high-stakes disputes relating to the company's patent licensing and modem chipset businesses, including federal antitrust and intellectual property litigation with Apple and the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Reents received a B.A. in Economics from Swarthmore College in 1996, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and a J.D. from Stanford Law School in 2007, where he was elected to the Order of the Coif. Mr. Reents served as a law clerk to Hon. Gerard E. Lynch of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. Prior to practicing law, Mr. Reents worked in the technology industry for eight years. He has served as the Firm's Lead Attorney for Data Analytics and E-Discovery. Mr. Reents was named of counsel in 2023.
